LINDSEY BOULLT - "Composition"

Instrumental Album by an American guitarist whose reputation in the general public is disproportionate to their abilities. The fact that he is a professor at the GIT Automatically ensures the quality of his work, but it was not a futile exaggerations and other such demonstrations. His compositions have momentum and melody, and prog oriental motifs, but also the expressive depth guaranteed by the executive partner of musical aptitude. It is not only the violinist Jerry Goodman, who championed by emphasizing the ideas of the composer, but also the involvement of Derek Sherinian, Atma Anur, Jon Herrera, Mingo Lewis, Stu Hamm and Jeremy Colson makes the album worth noting at least from the personal to the fans. Without the names to kapelonoun quality, the whole material lends itself to an enjoyable listening and that if done with care of the details should identify and justify the title of a very fine movement.
